  <h1>Learning Web Design</h1>
  <h2>WHERE DO I START?</h2>
  The Web has been around for more than 20 years now, experiencing euphoric early expansion, an economic-driven bust, an innovation-driven rebirth, and constant evolution along the way.
  <h3>What does a Web Designer do?</h3>
  <h4>Description</h4>
  Over the years, the term "web design has become a catchall for a process that encompasses a number of different disciplines, from user experience design, to document markup, to serious programming. This section describes some of the most common roles.

  <h3>What language do I need to learn?</h3>
  he following is a list of technologies associated with web development. Which languages and technologies you learn will depend on the role you see yourself in within the web design process. However, I advise everyone involved in building websites to know their way around HTML and Cascading Style Sheets, and if you want to do frontend web development for a living, JavaScript know-how is pretty much a job requirement
  <h4>What do I need to buy?</h4>
  Bear in mind that while I've listed the most popular commercial software tools available, many of them have freeware or shareware equivalents that you can download.
  <h2>What you've learned?</h2>
  While many profesional tools exist, it is possible to create a basic computer setup
